There is a certain joy in visiting your alma mater, and actor Neha Dhupia experienced the same when she visited Delhi University's Jesus and Mary College (JMC) on Wednesday 09.08.2017. The insta-active actor, started posting stories about her visit even before entering the college campus, and kept her followers updated.

"I am so excited! Can't believe I'm here after all these years. And, from what I've heard, there are 2000 girls waiting to talk to me. I don't even know what I'm gonna talk on," said Neha.

It wasn't hard to imagine the excitement of JMC girls, on meeting their star-senior, and the continuous camera flashes were testimony. "I was so excited to see Neha. The best part was that she wasn't here to promote anything; she just came to meet her college juniors. We had a fun interactive session, where she answered our queries without any hesitation. She shared her memories of JMC and made us feel so proud of our college," says Ankita Kamra, a JMCite.

Filled with nostalgia, Neha walked to her classroom through the hallways, and even conversed with the present principal and the staff. Reminiscing her college days, Neha said, "That's where my class used to be; in this very corridor. This is kinda nostalgic and I may cry, but I have fake eyelashes and I don't wanna mess that up!"

As the girls bid her a teary farewell, one among them, Shruti, said: "Her connect with the college is so strong. I think, I love JMC a little more now because of her."

To Sr Dr Rosily and the JMC Family : Carry on, Superbly !!

PS : Is it okay to call JMC alumnae "Jemcinians"...
