“ I wish to pursue a life and a career that allows me to be as creative, independent and diversified as I wish to be, while also giving me an opportunity to contribute to society in very tangible terms.

“ I'm passionate about entrepreneurship and am currently a partner in an integrated hatchery and poultry production unit in one of the poorest districts of Orissa. I dream big, but I realise that both passion and practical approach are necessary to fulfil my dreams. I have, therefore, taken small steps to gain entrepreneurial experience since my college days by founding the Entrepreneurship Cell, also... experimenting with environmental business as one of British Council's International Climate Champions and as an intern with World Wildlife Fund for Nature-India .

“My academic training may be in economics and finance, but I hope to have learnt a whole lot more during my time as a Young India Fellow”.
